

The Sophie Davis Forum on Gender, Conflict Resolution and Peace together with Glocal International Development Program cordially invites you to a special screening of

An Ordinary Life

Monday, December 16, 5:00-7:00pm

Room 2415, Social Science Building, Hebrew University of Jerusalem

Fadhumo and Helen are two refugees seeking sanctuary, one in Tel Aviv and one in Berlin, each coping with discrimination, otherness and a life away from home.

The two close friends become social activists determined to assist women like themselves and to provide a better future for next generations. Efrat Shalom Danon and Gili Danon's documentary displays the contrasts between Israeli and German immigration policies, while shedding light on the two women's mutual fate: an unstable life controlled by government policy, always depending on human kindness, guided by the belief that despite everything, their dreams may still have a chance.
